Background information

The New Charge; Australian Women Modernists is an exhibition of Australian Women Artists who, were making artworks from 1925-1945. It shows artworks that the artists made throughout their lives. Some of the artists in this exhibition made artworks that were portraits, landscapes and still life pictures. They made paintings, drawings and prints about their own lives and the changing world around them. It was a time of big changes in both technology and culture as well as the role of women in society.
